THE ALGONQUIN HOTEL

Which hotel is a perennial answer on Jeopardy?

The Algonquin Hotel - A Literary Landmark- lives in the minds of anyone who dreams of writing a hit play or bestseller. In 1919, a mix of friends from the worlds of theater and publishing started a luncheon tradition, the Round Table. The Vicious Circle personalities Robert Benchley, Edna Ferber, George S. Kaufman and Dorothy Parker traded bon mots during Prohibition. The New Yorker was dreamed up by Harold Ross and Jane Grant here. John Barrymore lived upstairs. F. Scott Fitzgerald brought his new bride, Zelda, to The Algonquin. Through this lobby passed Maya Angelou, J. D. Salinger, Tennessee Williams, Nora Ephron, Lou Reed, William Faulkner and many more to this day. Raise a glass, you are adding your story to one which began in 1902. Welcome.
