Celebrating A Century of Afternoon Tea

A century ago, at the base of Camelback Mountain, Sylvia Evans Byrnes, daughter-in-law of artist Jessie Benton Evans, began welcoming friends to her home, Jokake, with afternoon tea. Known for her warmth, charm and gracious nature, Sylvia had a gift for making guests feel at home, and in 1926, her intimate gatherings soon grew into a beloved social tradition.

In 1928, the property expanded and opened its doors as Jokake Inn. Tea became synonymous with the inn's warm hospitality, bringing together conversation, artistry and the leisurely spirit of the Sonoran Desert. Guests savored tea fare alongside chicken sandwiches and Sylvia's rich chocolate cake, affectionately named "Sure Death," while taking in the beauty of the surroundings and creating memories that endured for generations.

Today, 100 years later, The Phoenician continues this cherished tradition of Afternoon Tea, which has been part of its story since opening its doors in 1988, celebrating the timeless art of gathering over tea.
